

Indoor seeds

Generally, indoor seeds grow into more compact marijuana plants that need stable temperature conditions. This is why these seeds can be cultivated outdoors only during times and in places where conditions like that of a grow room are present.

Such conditions are usually seen in Mediterranean regions during April -October, while the conditions are appropriate in New Zealand, South America, and Australia during October - April.

Indoor Cannabis seeds